Optimists Week

This is National Optimists Week. Maybe it has something to do with the tense situation between this country and Japan, which still does not yet turn out to be war.

Well, here's a story of an Optimist, the source of which is Laidlaw Williams, who "follows the bird," as a country weekly up north so adequately put it.

Mr. Williams, who, as an ornithologist is always looking into strange places in which might lurk some kind of a bird, recently turned up an Optimist Bird.

His name is Angelo, Mr. Williams relates. He's a retiring fellow, and lives a hard dusty, hour down a mountain road up in Mendocino country.

After you drive all that way, your car scraping bottom every few feet and the radiator boiling dry every furlong, you arrive at a house. In this house lives Angelo.

I asked Laidlaw what Angelo does for a living. Cut ties or shakes?

"Oh no," declares the bird-man, "Angelo is a kind of a real estate agent."

Well, that's one place a real estate agent isn't likely to be bothered very much by Army people looking for a house.

Weather or Not

A United Press dispatch from San Francisco the other day hit the nail on the head and sank it with a nail punch.

It spoke of the U.S. Weather Bureau as "the home of incurable Optimists."

Isn't It a Shame!

Point Lobos State Park is closed on Mondays during the winter.

Some one told us it was closed Thanksgiving Day, too. I didn't check up on whether my informant meant Thanksgiving (the old day) or "Franksgiving," as the Republicans have it; but they insist the park was closed on a legal holiday.

All of which seems a shame because it is on such days that the most people can enjoy a place they have spent the shekels to establish and may have come a long way to see.

Editorial of the Week

We, the entire CYMBAL staff, wish that the State would acquire for a State Park all territory along the ocean shore from north of the Carmel river to the boundary of Point Lobos State Park for an extension of the present park or as an adjunct for recreational purposes.

So that "recreational purposes" will not be misconstrued, I define this as simply for an outdoor place in which to walk, fish, swim, picnic, but not for camping, establishment of concessions of any kind whatsoever or for any shade or form of commercialism.

The only exception I would make in the above restrictions would be for camping. Otherwise I'd have the park one to be enjoyed by anyone who goes outdoors for the mere pleasure of getting out in the sunshine (or fog) and air for the purposes of natural exercise in beautiful and unspoiled surroundings.

I think this is the time to start a movement rolling in this direction. I feel that before long it will be too

TO BURY, BURN GARBAGE MAY BE BANNED

Other cities prohibit burning or burying garbage, while Carmel's lax law permits such private disposal.

This was brought out at last evening's council meeting when Louis Conlan, of the Carmel Garbage Company, Inc., brought scavenging once more to the fore.

The council thereupon hinted at a revision in the city garbage ordinance.

Core of the idea for a legal change is to cooperate with other peninsula cities in an effort to rout out those who litter the landscape with bundles of garbage, or who bury garbage in shallow pits for dogs to dig up and scatter.

Conlan was asking for permission to sell scrip tickets for garbage collection. Anything such as scrip, cash in advance, or by the year in advance, is agreeable to the council. Public reaction proved mostly favorable to the plan, it was revealed.

Real estate agents will be encouraged to issue scrip tickets to renters who have provided a considerable portion of the garbage nuisances.

Conlan also mentioned a "Carmel game" of letting the garbage bill run up, beating the garbage man down into taking a reduction in the amount owing, or, if possible, skip out of it altogether.

Apparently, Conlan, and his partner, Ray Force, "won't play."

Harold Nielsen Heads Business Association

Capt. Shelburn Robison, for five years president of the Carmel Business Association, handed the gavel over to Harold Nielsen this week—as one school board member to another.

Nielsen's executive board includes Edwin H. Ewig, vice-president, and Barbara Norberg, who gives away all sorts of swell services in the name of pro bono publico, and gets precious little for it (though she won't admit it!) becomes secretary.

Camilla Daniels, retiring secretary, was warmly thanked.

Ewig is associated with Ernest Morehouse in the real estate and insurance business (Thoburns), while Mrs. Norberg with her husband, Gunnar, conducts the Information Bureau.

At the Tuesday evening dinner meeting, at Normandy Inn, Morehouse reported on progress toward construction of the pedestrian path over Carmel Hill.

Ernest Bixler, postmaster, reported on publicizing Defense Savings bonds and stamps and "Doc" Staniford and J. O. Handley were named to the business group's committee.

ACROSS THE YEARS

"So this is you, great-grandfather?" says John Charles Fremont, Carmel High footballer and basketball player, to the heroic bust of General John Charles Fremont modeled by the Pebble Beach sculptor, Austin James. It was the first time young John Charles Fremont, a newcomer to Carmel, had seen this portrait in the Monterey Custom House of his path-finding ancestor.

JOHN CHARLES FREMONT

Pathfinder—and Path Clincher!

Who blazed the way indeed,
But more—who made the eternal Fact
Where to a path had need;
Who, while our Websters set at naught
The thing that was to be,
Whipped out our halting halfway map
Full to the Other Sea!

'Twas well that there were some could read
The logic of the West!
A Kansas-edged geography
Of provinces confessed,
Became potential Union
And took a Nation's span
When God sent Opportunity
And Benton sent the Man!

To Those Dependent on 'Retired' Incomes

Editor, CARMEL CYMBAL:

In voting against the Price Control Bill, last week, Carmel's Congressman, Jack Z. Anderson, I am sure did not represent Carmel's interests, for a vast majority of Carmel people live on "retired" incomes, and all Carmel retailers to a great extent live on them indirectly. In fact, I can think of nothing more important to Carmel prosperity than prevention of run-away prices.

Already costs have jumped roughly 10 per cent. Another 10 per cent gain is certain, no matter what is done, for retail increases must catch up to wholesale gains already made. Only strong action can prevent "retired" incomes shrinking from 25 to 50 per cent.

The Price Control Bill, tragically weakened by amendments, has now gone to the Senate; but it will be back in the House. Carmel people will protect their own interests and help our economy strong for defense if they immediately write Congressman Jack Z. Anderson and Senators Hiram Johnson and Sheridan Downey urging strong price control legislation.

I wish such organizations as the Business Association, Legion Post and League of Women Voters would also register their feelings, by resolution. It's important—to the nation—and to Carmel.

GODWIN SEES SAVING IF WE DROP S.P.C.A.

For $600 in cash and licenses collected in Carmel, the Humane Society will continue present services to this city.

Otherwise, nothing—

Recently the society asked the annual donation be upped from $400 to $600. The council demurred, set Fred Godwin, commissioner for health and safety, to investigating.

Godwin discovered Carmel is paying too much and receiving too little service, proportionately (and absolutely), after checking with Monterey and Pacific Grove.

In a letter to the city, the Humane Society has slammed the door in the council's collective face as regards anything less than $600 in cash.

An alternative fee-for-service arrangement, however, was mentioned. This is the straw the council is grasping at, thereby opening the way to save approximately enough to pay for a $900 increase in salaries to police officers next year. (Favored last night.)

The Humane Society last year took about $1000 out of Carmel. Under a plan suggested at last evening's council meeting, this may be saved to the city, less certain fees for service required on occasion, and the balance put by in case of an emergency.

Such an emergency as a rabies epidemic, in which the State, or at least the county, would take charge, might provide the rainy day against which such a fund should be built.

Judge Dismisses Andre Complaint

Superior Judge Henry Jorgensen this week dismissed the complaint against Duke C. Andre, Carmel businessman, on the defendants' motion that there was insufficient evidence given in preliminary examination. Joseph Conner and Wilton Byrum were co-defendants on some of the charges. All were released. The judge said there was "no legal evidence against Andre."

"If the charges can be proved legally, the head man should be in San Quentin, and everyone must learn there can be no suppression of evidence in any court, including the justice courts," Jorgensen commented in putting aside the charges.

Deputy District Attorney Gordon Campbell said he was undecided regarding further action.

The previous charge of petty theft of building materials had been dismissed by the justice court following jury disagreement.

Do You Know Your Local Hospital? The Peninsula Community Does A Grand Job—and Grows a Bit

The Peninsula Community Hospital is doing a very fine business. So fine, in fact, that there's a perpetual waiting list of patient patients ready to hop in the minute someone else hops out and unless you're an emergency, it's a pretty tight squeeze.

As for the baby turnover—the traffic's terrific. Last year the final score was 250; this year it will probably break the 375 mark. With a total of 39 for November, no wonder it's called the biggest baby factory on the peninsula.

To take proper care of the incoming aches and pains, has called for a lot of nurse importing. They've already enlarged for the babies, now they're enlarging for the nurses. The new 10-room wing addition to the nurses' home will be ready for them to move into by December 15th. Yes, things are going along at a great clip up there.

It's a very amazing hospital—to begin with. If you were out with the sole purpose of finding a hospital, you'd surely pass it by, this huge rambling Spanish building settled high up on a pine hill looking south to the mountains and west to the ocean, surrounded by balconies and terraces.

When the sun shines, the balconies have beds and patients; rain or shine, the terraces have tiled fountains, banana trees and cerise bougainvillea. You'd pass it by because you wouldn't be able to get one sniff of institutionalized air, that most distinct and unattractive characteristic of a hospital.

The rooms are done in pastel colors, eliminating the favorite scheme of white trimmed in white. From almost every window there's a lovely view of either the valley or a corner of the ocean—that is, if you happen to be in the sightseeing mood.

This luxurious atmosphere exists because the Peninsula Community Hospital's foundation was laid in a different era from the present—in the golden days just before the depression when Grace Deere Velie willed $240,000 for the building, equipment and maintenance of what was to be the Deere Velie Metabolic Clinic and which was completed in 1930.

For four years it was operated as a clinic until the dark, dark hand of the depression grabbed ahold of the lovely resort-like establishment, making it necessary for it to transform itself into a general hospital rather than a specialized clinic.

Since the Deere Velie endowment had been completely absorbed, in order to make possible the transformation, funds from the community were raised to make the additions, which turned it into a hospital, such as an operating room, an emergency room, a delivery room.

In October of 1935 it opened officially as the Peninsula Community Hospital, a hospital serving the entire peninsula which has operated ever since as a non-profit corporation with medical staff of 21 doctors, and a board of directors composed of civic-minded peninsula residents, at the helm.

The board is composed of W. W. Powell of Los Angeles (the only non-resident), president; Byington Ford, vice-president; J. E. Abernethy, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. R. R. Wallace, A. W. Wheldon, B. A. Lee, and John Thomsen. Except for Mrs. Wallace, who replaced Mrs. Olga Fish, the board is exactly the same as the original one. For six and a half years, Miss Katherine Smits has been superintendent of the hospital and the nurses.

Once started, the hospital was henceforth an entirely self-supporting organization and all expenses have been met by income, no further solicitations have been necessary. Donations, are still another matter and, needless to say, are ever welcome. Last year it was granted an approval by the American College of Physicians and Surgeons.

A squint at the records show just how much the place has grown. When it was first made into a general hospital, the capacity was 10 or 15 patients; now they can handle 28 or 39 (it's 39 most of the time). Before, the average was about 800 a year, now it's around 1500.

In 1936 the increase in baby cases made it necessary to have a separate department for the mothers and babes—that was when there were only about 60 babies a year, so the nurse's quarters were turned into a maternity ward and the nurses put into separate building. But last year babies were arriving so fast and furiously that a new nursery had to be added, plus two new private rooms. The new nursery provided for separate-unit care, the latest gadget in such things.

It's not only lovely to look at, but our hospital also is fully equipped with a modern full-time X-ray and laboratory department and a complete physio-therapy section, all in the hands of technicians.

As added life-saving frills, there's a resuscitator (given in commemoration of E. K. Tuttle by his children), which is in frequent use, and another gift is the Drinker respirator, more commonly known as an iron lung.

And speaking of gifts, an infant incubator is badly needed right now due to this recent attack of storkitis—one could be bought for $87.

The new nurses' wing on the lower terrace with 10 single rooms added to the older residence, will be ready for occupancy in less than two weeks and if there're many more babies and many more sick people, it looks as though the hospital itself will have to start doing a little expanding so as to take care of the various community ailments and the vicious baby boom. —E. H.

Carmel Hi Ways

The big noises at the high school Saturday afternoon were none other than the decorations for the freshman class dance that evening. The theme of the dance was the usual baby blue and pink of the freshmen. It was decorated by Peggy Doud, Nancy Street, Jo Ann Thorn, Nan Fraser, Jim Jensen, Betty Powell, and Grace Penha. There were drawings of pink elephants, spotted giraffes, and other animals on the black boards, drawn by Nancy Street.

It started out to be just a Freshmen dance, but ended with a lot of upper classmen crashing it. However, a good time was had by all.

Defense Auxiliary To Offer Courses At First of Year

With the opening of the new year, Carmel women will find the chance to take advantage of six or eight evening and afternoon courses presented by the Civilian Defense Program of the Monterey Peninsula.

With the cooperation of the Adult Education Program, the Red Cross, and the office of Defense Health and Welfare Services, the Civilian Defense is able to give these courses which are forming a major part of the training program preparing the men and women of the community to meet any emergency which may affect the community as a whole.

The courses are so planned that in the majority of cases there are no requirements of previous training or experience, the courses will probably extend over a period of ten or more lectures and upon completion the student will find herself a full-fledged Nurse's Aid or member of the Drivers Corps.

Among the courses which will open soon after the first of January are:

FIRST AID—Standard Red Cross Courses, Junior First Aid.

Nutrition—Standard courses given by Red Cross instructors, balanced menus, Marketing, Food substitutes for family needs.

Nurses Aides Corps—Volunteer Nurses Aides, Home Nursing, Gray Ladies Corps.

Drivers Corps—Training in mechanics driving during blackouts, and under air raid conditions. A previous course or coinciding course in First Aid is a requirement as well as the use of a car during the course. Women will NOT be prepared for ambulance cases but for driving individuals in the event of an evacuation of similar emergency.

Messengers—(Particularly for boys and girls from 15 to 21).

Emergency Food and Housing Corps—Preparing for action in the community in a state of emergency. Drill work under the Welfare Department.

Emergency Telephone Service. Telephone Committee to work in Office of Deputy Coordinator of Women's Auxiliary.

Control of Fear and Panic, and Children's Hazards in Emergency—To be given by P.T.A. and Mother's Club.

Public Speaking—Same as above. Mrs. Cedric Rowntree, deputy coordinator of the Women's Auxiliary of Civilian Defense, urges all Carmel women to consider these courses and register as soon as possible.

Registration blanks are on hand in the office of Civilian Defense in the City Hall on Dolores street.

Any questions concerning the training courses or any of the workings of the Civilian Defense will gladly be answered by the workers in the office and any callers interested in the Civilian Defense program will be most welcome. Drop in or call 1924-W in one of your free moments. Office hours 10 to 5, Monday through Friday.

A subsequent announcement will be made concerning time and location of the classes but until then we hope that Carmel women will leave some free time at the first of the year for training in the protection of your community.

Airplane Plant Accident Fatal To John Sheridan

Youthful John Sheridan, well known to Carmelites several years ago when he lived here and was a stellar pitcher in the Abalone League, died in a Los Angeles hospital last Saturday, five days after being injured when an iron bar fell on him in an airplane factory.

The son and only child of Frank and Edna Sheridan, former residents of Carmel Woods, Jack had great promise of following his father as an actor. He also was a promising athlete until he suffered a knee injury.

Jack attended Sunset school before he moved with his family to Hollywood, where his father, a famous actor of the stage, turned to the motion picture field.

Abandoning his ambitions to become an actor for the time being, Jack had entered the airplane factory and was making speedy progress. Struck down and pinned beneath the weighty iron, he made a strong fight for life while surgeons struggled to save him. He appeared to be making headway when he suddenly relapsed and died.

His red hair, freckles, smile, and athletic ability as a boy pitcher of great ball, will long be remembered by all who played in or attended Abalone League contests in the days of the Carmel Woods diamond. He was 21.

What harvest shall this monster reap?
When only seeds of hatred and of misery

Watered by tears of despair:

for Jack to see—and imaginatively he likes to picture that earlier California town of 1846.

Sardines Scooped in Blankets

A Monterey, not in the least interested in a flag, "Give us a guitar and the fandango and the devil take the flag!"

It was a dance-mad Monterey, overrun with mongrel dogs and gamblers who, driven out of town, operated in the canyons and ravines nearby. It was a town filled with half-civilized savages, trappers, Mexicans, Frenchmen, Germans, Russians, with its washerwomen playing rather an important role. For, washing in the streams behind Monterey, they always were first to get the big news of outside happenings. Sardines were just beginning to figure in local life. Indians used to scoop them up in the shallows a half a peck at a time in their big blankets.

When General Fremont rode in to this polyglot Monterey he was the man of the hour. Because his birthplace had been Savannah, Ga., he felt it a good augury that "the birth of this new child of our nation should have been presided over by the Savannah of the sea"—for Commodore Sloat was aboard the flagship S.S. Savannah anchored near the British Collingwood in Monterey Bay. All in all, what happened that July was a case of the time—the place, and the man—Fremont, Jack's great grandfather.

—E. M. J.

WE THINK THEY'RE INTERESTING

Anyone seeing young John Charles Fremont of the Carmel high school standing beside the portrait bust of his great grandfather, General John Charles Fremont in the Monterey Custom House (See Photo P. 1), could not fail to see the resemblance between the 15-year-old boy and the bearded U.S. A. military man who secured California for us. The ears are noticeably similar, the shape of the head, too. But most of all there is, in both cases, a corresponding fine nobility of brow.

Austin James' Portrait

Austin James, Pebble Beach sculptor, modeled this heroic bust under difficulties. No profile photograph was available to him except one of microscopic smallness. That the portrait is a likeness, well as strong and vital, we have the word of an old San Luis Obispo man who once knew Fremont personally. He had only one criticism to make—he had never seen Fremont with his hair brushed as tidily as it was in the portrait bust!

Jack and the General

Besides the resemblance of brow between young Jack Fremont and his great-grandfather, are other similarities. Man and boy—both restless, sensitive, slender, wiry, with quickness of wit, poise, imaginative and of the artistic temperament.

General Charles Fremont had the artistic temperament in spite of his being a pathfinder. In spite of his being an humanitarian (whose interest in slavery antedated Lincoln's), an astronomer, a naturalist, an engineer who blazed the trails which most of our railroads and highways follow exactly today, he liked to draw.

Beetle Fools Nicolle

Once as a young man in Washington he was taking notes by an oil lamp for the great French scientist, Nicolle. There were long periods between recording observations. Fremont amused himself by drawing the portrait of a beetle exploring the lamplight on his notebook. It was so life-like a picture that Nicolle tried to brush it off—and was peeved he couldn't!

While Jack, at this point is not going in for art, he is studying music with his Italian mother, Jesusa Guidi Fremont, of the Conti Guidi family—Counts of Tuscany, who is a distinguished musician trained at the Naples Conservatory of Music and later graduated from the University of New York. She now has a Carmel studio.

The Fremonts as Schoolboys

While he was a star football player at the high school during the season and is now playing on the basketball team, Jack loves the woods. He has never been so happy as since he came here to live in our Carmel woods.

His ancestor, with wanderlust even as a boy, played hooky regularly from school to be out in the woods. But his masters loved him, a poet at heart with a flair for mathematics. As a man, he spent his life "on the borderland between savagery and civilization"—chiefly in the great American woods, or among prairies which were "all road," or trail blazing "a land of rock upon rock . . . snow upon snow . . . among waste places and Indians." Risking death by freezing, thirst, starvation or scalping by Indians.

It's a queer romantic twist of events that brings young John Charles Fremont who, born in New York, has spent most of his life in San Francisco with his father, Benton Fremont, to the land of his great grandfather—to the spot where the most important thing in General John Charles Fremont's life happened.

This was the raising of the American flag at the Custom House by Commodore Sloat on Fremont's orders because of the general great successes at Bear Valley.

Fremont Gets Flag Raised

When General Fremont, with Kit Carson and his trusty Delaware Sagundai Indian, came into Monterey 12 days after the raising of the flag on July 7, 1846, he wrote afterwards that they all felt like men who had just passed the winning post, and "every man a captain."

There were the British aboard the S.S. Collingwood waiting for a document to be signed by Mexico which would give them colonizing rights up and down the length of California. As one Britisher told Fremont, if America had not raised the flag that day, England would have.

But No Written Order

Fremont had been working under handicaps. He had his orders from Washington to get California at any cost. But they were secret orders—not written. He had no written order to have the flag raised. But it had to be raised, so he instructed Sloat to do it. He wrote once about this psychological moment . . . "that at last the time had come when England must not get a foothold, that we must come first. I was to act discreetly, but positively." And he did.

Some of the old Monterey landmarks which Fremont saw the day they rode into Monterey, still stand

FIFTH GRADER TELLS OF TRIP TO SPRECKELS SUGAR FACTORY

Thursday, November 27, 1941 at 12:30 p.m., Miss Staffebach's fifth grade class started on their way to visit Spreckels Sugar Factory near Salinas. Transportation was kindly provided by some of the mothers.

We arrived about 1:15 p.m. and two guides took us through the factory and explained the different processes to us. First we saw how the beets arrive on trucks and freight trains, and how they are carried to the factory in flumes.

Then we went to the chemistry laboratory where the sugar beets are tested to see how much sugar they have in them. Next we saw them washed, weighed again, and put through the slicer which slices them in small strips.

They were then put through the diffusion tank, purifier, filter, press, evaporators, vacuum pans, centrifugal machines, drying machines and last of all it is put into sacks

ALTAR SOCIETY WILL BE HOST AT CARMEL MISSION

The Altar Society of Carmel Mission will entertain the National Council of Catholic Women of the Monterey District at Crespi Hall on Friday afternoon, December 12th at 2:30 p.m.

There will be a program dedicated to the "Bill of Rights Week." The guest of honor will be one of the descendants of the Carrols of Carrolton, Catholic signers of the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights. Tea will be served after the program, which are made at the factory. We then went to the warehouses which were full of bags of sugar and beet pulp that had been prepared for cattle feed.

The whole trip was very fascinating, and helped us understand more about modern methods of doing things.

We didn't get back to Carmel until about 3:45, but we had a very good time. —PATRICIA TIMBERS

Now in Business

Ever since that fine young college boy an athlete, Homer Levinson, crashed in the surf on Carmel beach and was forced from an active life to one of confinement at his home, Homer has created an entirely new life for himself.

His room has become a regular boys' club, a gathering place to which all his friends flock on every occasion. His brightness and refusal to take defeat has won him a warm place in the heart of the community.

Now has come the time, Homer announces, to start up in business. It will start as a small business at first, but to what dimensions it may grow one can only guess.

The business will be selling and renewing magazine subscriptions, and everyone, whether they know him personally or have just heard of this courageous boy, is asked to let him know their subscription needs.

Just a Word

The Carmel Music Society, all its members and almost all of its subscribers, will appreciate prompt arrival at the Leroux concert.

"Tell them if they must 'show off' that Ted Kuster could use an actor or two, if they have any talent, too," is the way one music-lover put it.

We used to call the late people "Goops" when I was a kid. Remember?

Corum Jackson, Capt. Robison On Rent Board

Corum B. Jackson, Carmel realty leader, and Capt. Shelburn Robison, attorney, are Carmel nominees for a peninsula defense area rental control committee.

This committee, now being formed, will act as a clearing house for complaints regarding rental abuses in anticipation of the bill to regulate rents in defense areas now passed Congress and before the Senate.

As president of the Peninsula Real Estate Board, Jackson this week urged tackling the situation immediately with appointment of two members from each of the peninsula cities to round out the committee.

Flagrant cases, if substantiated, will be turned over to an assessing group to determine just rentals, it is indicated in the pending law.

Jackson pointed out before the Monterey chamber of commerce and the Carmel Business Association that the local realty board would gladly cooperate with the spirit of the bill and that action would in turn benefit the communities.

He told the CYMBAL that this area had worked out its defense housing problems most ably, as compared with other communities, and that promptness of action had been a saving grace.

That Carmel had a special problem of its own, as Jackson pointed out, ordinarily commanding higher rents than adjoining cities, rents which seemed higher here now were not relatively so much increased as rents in neighboring cities.

CAN YOU HELP MAKE SOME VETERAN'S CHRISTMAS A MERRY ONE?

Tomorrow afternoon and evening, members of the Carmel American Legion Auxiliary will be busy packing their annual box for non-compensated veterans at the Soldiers' Home at Sawtelle, California.

Cigarettes, candy, books or anything along that line will be sent and if you would like to add to this box, you may leave your gift at Imelmans store, where it will be picked up by Auxiliary.

CARMEL RIVER 'PLAN' DRAWN UP IN VALLEY

Owners of valley property are working out a plan for lands through which passes the Carmel River. Being a non-navigable stream, the river is more or less private property. Mostly more than less.

With riparian rights being constantly infringed upon, their property continually threatened by fire because of carelessness and occasional vandalism, these valley people are petitioning Senator Ed Tickle regarding Fish and Game Commission control over the river and the state trespass law.

Assailing asserted action by Sportsmen's Associations, the Fish and Game Commission, and those who trespass and cause needless damage, and upholding the right of the young to summer trout fishing, the petitioners are pleading as follows:

The petition:

"To the Honorable Edward Tickle, State Senator:

"We, the undersigned farmers and property owners of the Carmel Valley, are definitely opposed to the law which was sponsored by the Monterey Sportsmen's Club, closing the trout fishing in the Carmel River during the regular season from the first of May to the end of October. This law was passed without consideration of the wishes of the property owners in the Carmel Valley who have a greater right to say what shall go on in regard to the Carmel River. The Sportsmen's Clubs have consistently worked against the farmers in opposing every attempt the farmers have made to get a decent trespass law passed by the State Legislature. We object to shutting the children out of fishing on their own property at a time when the weather is best and the legitimate season is on elsewhere in the State. We are opposed to having any outside group tell us what we can do on our own property.

"We recommend that this law be changed immediately.

"B. H. Schulte, D. P. Carder, Roy E. Meadows, Ed Van De Bogart, John M. Parker, Luis F. Wolter, Mrs. Luis F. Wolter, Frank D. Hatton, Philip Hatton, Mrs. Ida Hatton, Edna O. Murphy, M. J. Murphy, Estate of Maude T. Stewart by Lottie F. Martin, Guardian, Andrew Stewart, T. C. Meadows, Mrs. O. B. Jones, Gaylord Ranch, by Charles Locke, Kenneth C. Gould, Elmer R. Lang, Arthur Withy, Roy Martin, John Ameil, H. H. Hatton, T. F. Riley, J. O. Handley, E. C. Marble, D. W. Morrow, Jr. (lessee), Mrs. Margaret Nicolay, Mrs. Gertrude Coleman, Truman Scarlett, Mabel B. Mason, David P. Wolter, Pietro Polleri, Lottie F. Martin, W. E. Martin, Bruno Odello, Sidney W. Fish, Noel Sullivan, Beverly R. Stover, S. F. B. Morse."

We, the property owners of the Carmel Valley are convinced that the Monterey Sportsmen's Club is the originator and sponsor of the law which closes the Carmel River to trout fishing during the regular summer season from May to October. Whether the law went sour on its way through the legislative channels is of no consequence. The fact remains that the Monterey Sportsmen's Club started it and voted on it without the consent of the property owners or the residents of the area affected. Furthermore, when the California Division of Fish and Game confronted them with the alternative of either summer fishing or winter fishing but not both, they arbitrarily selected winter fishing and arranged the days for fishing. We feel that the majority prefer trout fishing in the summer months.

The action that was taken at the mouth of the Carmel River was done purposely to arouse public opinion and test public reaction to these high-handed methods. We are indebted to these men who opposed the adoption of this law. We are very gratified at the whole hearted response given by the public in general and the fishermen in particular. It is regrettable that the incident went so far as to involve personalities. This appeared to be an attempt to divert public opinion from the real issues.

After all, this is the Carmel River and not the Monterey River. The property owners and farmers of the Carmel Valley who pay the taxes and do the work on the river should have something to say about what goes on in regard to the Carmel River. If the Monterey Sportsmen's Club had come to us and stated their case we would have been willing to compromise with a program acceptable to those concerned. But if the Monterey Sportsmen's Club persists in their attitude we shall be forced to exclude them from our properties. There has arisen some doubt in the minds of outsiders as to the validity of the trespass law. It has been intimated that we could not enforce the trespass law in the case of the Carmel River. We have it on reliable authority that we can very definitely enforce the law and we intend to stick by our rights under the law.

We object to shutting out the children from one of the finest forms of recreation there is in this country, especially during the summer when the weather is right for outdoor activities and the stream is not a dangerous, raging torrent. We believe that this is a blow at the welfare of children. The children do not drive cars and therefore cannot go long distances for their pleasure. We should be extending this form of recreation for our children rather than limiting it. We will not gain anything by denying the children the healthy fun we enjoyed in our youth.

We hope that the people will rally to our support in having this law changed so that they may again enjoy trout fishing on the Carmel River.

Vocational and Trade Schooling Offered by Navy

One of the most striking developments in education during the past ten years has been the tremendous growth of part time schools, evening and correspondence schools, extension courses and other kinds of instruction for men and women who are gainfully employed. States, cities, colleges and many business corporations of the country are spending millions of dollars on education for people who want to earn and learn at the same time.

The chief reason for the success and growth of this kind of instruction is that the studying of any trade or vocation and the obtaining of working experience in the same line, at the same time, is an almost ideal combination for achieving success. The man who can follow his chosen line of work and at the same time continue studies that lead to advancement, obtains a practical knowledge that is hard to get any other way.

The U.S. Navy made use of this method of developing highly skilled men many years before this type of schooling was widely used in civil life. Thus the Navy has long been recognized as offering opportunities for patriotic men to receive valuable trade experience with no expense to themselves and in a shorter time than they could obtain the same experience in a civil occupation.

Training in the Navy begins on the day the new recruit enters the service and does not end until the day he leaves.

A Yard Does It

Take a yard of 39-inch satin, work it on the bias, and make yourself a dolman sleeve blouse—just like that. It's easy and you will make more than one, matching different skirts. A slit, carefully centered of course, for neck, a V-neck, with the corners turned back as little reverses. The edges bound with some of the selvage salvaged, so the suggestion in a woman's magazine helpfully hints.

Needles and Pins

If you are the kind of woman who has the stitch-in-time nimbleness of finger—and does not use nail polish to stop runs—get one of the new Colonial wood sewing boxes, made in Vermont and sold in Carmel. Small and goodlooking, sitting quietly on the floor they fit in with both a typical Carmelish room or a pale streamlined modernistic one.

At Loose Ends

It's hearts and flowers on scarves floating in the our seashore breeze. By now you are probably scarf-conscious. But you need something more than bright wool or silk squares for the knotty effect around your throat. The long chiffon scarves, wispy as they are, do shelter sensitive areas exposed at night by the deep plunging neck lines. And the new satin ascot ties look good and feel good—especially in an open roadster doing for the nth time the 17 Mile Drive with impressed out-of-towners visiting Carmel. You really can't have too many scarves at this point.

Bows Still Beau-Catchers

Age is making no difference. Anyone can pin a bowknot anywhere. From the tip of inverted pompadours, bouncing curls, or Frenchy bangs to the instep of an appealing ankle. Bows are supposed to heighten the appeal, and in lots of cases they actually do. Silver and gold pins are flooding the market as bowknots. Some with open face watches dangling from them—shades of the gay nineties!

Already in Print

Prints are being worn under winter coats—the new ones with bishop sleeves. But you can sneak out your last summer's print from the closet, if it doesn't look too June-y, and get away with it. Pipe the pockets, sew on some buttons down the side. Wear a one-tone jacket with the print collar outside. It will do nicely for outdoor brunch on the Normandy terrace or in the Pine Inn patio. The new prints are closely patterned with rather geometrically trim designs. Or they are big and splashily flowered like the Hawaiian prints, which are coming in now and which are right in the spirit of things around this coast.

Lisle vs. Silk Hosiery

While lisle sounds more like silk than cotton, it is still cotton, fine singed cotton. The funny thing is it doesn't wear as well as silk, but

Rose Ramblings

Rose planting time is just around the corner and we'll again be tempted by all the pretty pictures in the rose catalogs. However, since studying a list sent out by the U.S. Department of Agriculture some months ago I seem to have black spots before my eyes and some of the pictures aren't nearly as pretty as before. This list deals with the susceptibility of Rose varieties to Black Spot and, since this disease is so prevalent in California, should be of interest to every grower of roses.

There are six groupings, arranged in order as to resistance. The first group is "nearly" free from Black Spot, and includes the following varieties: Donald Prior, Henry Nevada, Lady Ursula, Miss America, Mrs. Charles Bell, Mrs. Wakefield Christie-Miller, Pink Dawn and Susan Louise. The last one is designated entirely free of the disease.

Second group—Occasional Traces: Adoration, Barcelona, Chas. K. Douglas, Dream Parade, Duchess of Wellington, Etoile de Hollande, Feu Pernet-Ducher, Gloriana, McGredy's Triumph, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Poinsettia, Queen Mary, Radiance, Red Radiance and Sterling.

Third Group—Some Black Spot and a Little Defoliation at Base of Plant but not Seriously Affecting Plant Appearance or Bloom: Betty Upchurch, Caroline Testout, Crimson Glory, Eclipse, Elsie Paulsen, Gaiety, Gloaming, Golden Dawn, Holstein, Killarney Queen, Little Beauty, Mrs. Sam McGredy, Narcisse, President Herbert Hoover, Robin Hood, Sensation, Sentinel, Stratford, Will Rogers, World's Fair, Yosemite.

The last three groups sound serious as indicated by the headings: "Defoliation seriously affecting appearance, as well as late summer and fall bloom," and "Very badly affected and defoliated." Many of our favorites are in the latter group, such as Feu Joseph Looymans, Golden Main, Golden Rapture, Lolita Armour, Orange Glory, Padre, Souvenir de Claudius, Pernet, Talisman and Wilhelm Kordes.

It might be well to consult the above list before planting to minimize future spraying. Black Spot can be controlled if one is willing to spray every week or so with a fungicide, or to dust with sulfur. The main thing is to determine whether you'll have a less desirable sort without spraying or have one on the taboo list and determine to fight the disease.

snagless which means something to women who fuss around gardens and keep dogs. The new lises being sold here are French lises, with a silk sheen which holds up after washing. Nylon production has been cut down, almost in half. This puzzles merchants who have decided it's an artificial way of creating a shortage and subsequently a larger demand.

The Week's Recipe

By Mrs. Guy Koepf

SPONGE CAKE

The kind that's so nice for tea—warm right out of the oven, unfrosted.

4 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup flour, 1 tsp. baking powder (if Royal is used, make it a heaping teaspoon), 1 tsp. vanilla.

Beat egg whites until stiff. Beat yolks separately until frothy, add to whites. Add sugar, while beating continuously, a little at a time. Put baking powder in flour, sift. (And you don't have to use cake flour!) Add seasoning. Bake in well greased tube pan for about 18 or 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

For variation, orange flavoring may be used and orange frosting. Or the batter may be baked in two small layer pans, using whipped cream between and on top, combined with fresh fruits, and dusted with powdered sugar. It's a very economical cake in spite of the four eggs, as there is no butter nor milk.

UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

Mrs. Koepf says sponge cake makes a wonderful base for an upside down cake. Take $\frac{3}{4}$ cup butter melted in skillet. Melt 1 or $1\frac{1}{4}$ cup of brown sugar, packed solid in a cup, in the butter. Remove from stove. Take a can of drained pineapple (broken slices may be used). Make a center of pineapple, using the remaining slices to make an all-over design. Take walnut meats, or pecans, pop these in the holes. Pour the sponge cake mixture on top of this. Bake about 20 or 25 minutes in moderate oven. When finished place a big plate over it and turn and there you have your Upside Down Cake.

A Charming Bride

At four o'clock last Friday afternoon the sun stepped out of a dismal winter sky and peered in through the windows of the Community Church so that Linda Rooke-Ley might be a bride the sun shone on.

At that time, Linda was married to Richard A. Morse of Tucson, Arizona. Witnessing the ceremony were young Peter Rooke-Ley, seven that day, who acted as his new father's best man and Lynda Sargent, who stood up with the bride and who has been her closest friend since Mrs. Rooke-Ley came to Carmel seven years ago.

The bride wore Chinese red accessories with her Molyneux original suit of chartreuse suede. She wore radiance and white gardenias, too, and the charming little church was decorated with tall vases of calla lilies which accented the dignity of the old English panelling and the kind solemnity of Dr. James E. Crowther who read the lines.

There have been few young women who have earned the popularity and general favor in Carmel that is Linda's. Ever since the first day she showed up in Tony Macbeth's shop up by the old Post Office, lending her friendly smile and her lovely ways to the job of interior decoration, everybody has liked her.

Mrs. Morse is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Bassett of Yardley, Pa., and has a B.A. from the University of Delaware.

Mr. Morse is the son of the late Samuel Adams Morse of Boston and twice the son of Harvard, taking his degree in architecture after finishing college there. A member of the architectural firm of Morse and Brown of Tucson, he numbers among other honors the presidency of the Arizona Chapter of the American Institute of Architects. Linda says he builds beautiful houses and you don't need to take her word for it; just pick up almost any of the good journals that have pictures of such things.

The Morses will make their home in Tucson, and that will be the loss of Carmel. Those who have known Linda well will always remember an oddly endearing little habit she had; a phrase she and her twin sister concocted way back in childhood, felicitous as childhood sayings so often are. When she takes leave of you she says charmingly, as if she couldn't bear to go, Good-bye, please.

This week she will say it to Carmel; Good-bye, please.

Mrs. Robert Seward and her two daughters, Nancy and Susannah, are back home in Lewiston, Maine, by this time. They left Carmel on Saturday after a two months' visit with Mrs. Seward's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Bosworth.

Where Women Come Into Their Own

Dr. Alexander Spoehr, who will be remembered in the village as the small boy of Dr. and Mrs. Herman Spoehr, is now an ethnologist on the staff of the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago and the author of a book entitled "Camp, Clan and Kin Among the Cow Creek Seminole of Florida." To obtain first-hand facts about the lives of the Cow Creek tribe Dr. Spoehr spent several months on the Brighton reservation, living Indian style and fraternizing with the members of the five principal clans of the tribe. He reports that the social structure of the tribe builds families and clans around mothers, sisters and wives rather than around bread-winning males.

The Thomas Mulvins deserted their San Carlos street home from Thursday of last week until Sunday of this spending the time in San Francisco and Palo Alto where they attended the Big Game.

John Cunningham of the Carmel Art Institute spoke before the Modesto Art League on November 25.

Attended Golden Wedding

A. C. Lafrenz of Carmel was in San Francisco on Tuesday of last week to attend the golden wedding anniversary of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Lafrenz. A dinner was held at the family home on Miramar avenue. Mr. William Lafrenz is well known to early San Franciscans as the former proprietor of Old Delmonico's and later of Blanco's Cafe.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Johnson invited several of their friends to play bridge on Monday evening. Guests of the Johnsons on this occasion were Mr. and Mrs. John Burr, Miss G. Lamke and her houseguest, Miss Janice Greenhood, Mrs. F. W. Ten Winkel and Mrs. Giesting.

Sorority Party

Miss Mary Morse, daughter of the S. F. B. Morses, and a Stanford Kappa, entertained at a house party at her Pebble Beach home over the Big Game week-end and on Sunday gave a buffet luncheon for the sorority's entire senior and junior classes and their escorts.

Puppet Play

Esther, Ruth and Jan Van Niel each invited a friend and their parents, Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Van Niel entertained the staff of the Hopkins Marine station last Saturday evening at a marionette show given in their North Camino Real home.

Away by Plane

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Winslow flew to Seattle recently and are spending a week or ten days there visiting friends.

The Murrays Return

Mr. and Mrs. Burleigh Hall Murray returned Saturday night after a week's visit in the bay region Golden Wedding anniversary reception of the Albert Matthews. They also took in "The Firefly," which they said was fine.

Ten years old was Gayle Beller last Saturday and in the afternoon she was hostess to a few of her friends at the studio home of her father, Alvin Beller. Those who shared the musical cake with Micki were Jean Southwell, Patricia Timbers, Jennifer Lloyd, Jeannette Reel, Shirlee Slipner and Louise Harbor.

And Cal Won

Thrilled by California's victory over Stanford on Saturday afternoon was James Hopper who with Mrs. Hopper braved the threat of rain and drove to Palo Alto for the Big Game. Then the sun came out and Jimmie saw the team of his alma mater emerge victor in the struggle and no doubt he played every second of the 60 minutes as he did in the days when he was a member of the team.

Mrs. Martin Flavin has arrived back from Chicago after having flown both ways.

Mrs. Edmund Dexter, sister of Mrs. F. W. Clappett of Carmel, will leave soon for Christmas in the East. Mrs. Dexter is now occupying her new home in Carmel Valley.

GERMAINE LEROUX, ABLE FRENCH PIANIST, WILL PLAY SATURDAY

Germaine Leroux will play for us at Sunset Auditorium on Saturday night, marking the second event of the Carmel Music Society artist series for this winter.

Mme. Leroux, young, beautiful, at the beginning of her career, is one of the outstanding members of the group of foreign artists to come to America and stay to enrich our concert field.

The local Music Society is to be commended in bringing her to Carmel on the enthusiastic recommendation of a Carmel music patron who heard the pianist in New York within the past two years.

When Mme. Leroux was a little girl of only six in her native Paris, she wrote the scenario and music of a pantomime for her older brother's puppet theater. When she graduated from the Paris Conservatory, ten years later, she won first piano prize, and after that was guest soloist with the continent's leading symphony orchestras. She has appeared in recital in all the capitals of Europe.

Upon coming to America with her husband, a distinguished Czechoslovakian diplomat, Mme. Leroux was invited to play at the White House, and since that time has been guest soloist with the New York Philharmonic Symphony.

"She plays with such spontaneity and charm" Olin Downes of the New York Times wrote.

"Her superb virtuosity breezed joyously through all" wrote the critic of the World.

"Her Bach was a model of fluency and control in which the complete tonal resources of the modern piano were put to uses which Bach would certainly have approved" said the Sun's music critic.

These and many more words of highest praise have been written under the names of New York's leading critics during the few years Mme. Leroux has been playing in this country. To a man they all mention the artist's beauty, her youth and her distinction of style and virtuosity.

Ticket holders are reminded that the doors of the auditorium will be closed at 8:30 and that no late comer will be admitted during Mme. Leroux' playing. There will be no exceptions made to this rule.

The Music Society box office is open tomorrow and Saturday from 11 to 4, at the headquarters on Ocean between Dolores and Lincoln, south side.

"Pie in the Sky" National Catholic Theater Offering

The San Francisco Catholic Theatre Guild which is presenting Emmet Lavery's new play, "Pie in the Sky," Sunday afternoon at the Carmel Playhouse, is but one of 25 producing centers in cities and towns across the country which constitute the National Catholic Theatre Conference.

A National Theatre in this country is no longer a dream. It is fulfilled in part by this Conference which has productions simulta-ously being produced by the groups in New York, Washington, Chicago—across America.

In its third annual session in New York, the Conference provided a realistic survey of what can be achieved in the theater beyond Broadway, by common will and action.

With Emmet Lavery as National Chairman, and Jo Meilzner, the Broadway stage designer, as vice-chairman, the Conference aims at a new balance of interest between professional and non-professional stage by diversion of talent to participate in creating good theater.

"Pie in the Sky," the new Lavery stage play, could be said to exemplify the term good theater—a good play (Lavery's best, including his famous "First Legion"), well done by the talented company of S.F. Catholic Theatre Guild actors.

Father Will Be a Farmer Soon

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Morrow and their two children, Stephen and Faith, are now settled for the winter in the house on the Marble ranch in the valley. Mr. Morrow is the son of the late Dwight Morrow, Ambassador to Mexico, and of Mrs. Morrow. He and his family have come here from Englewood, N.J., so that Mr. Morrow may study agriculture at Salinas Junior College and because Mrs. Morrow, the former Margot Loines, remembered how much she enjoyed a former visit to Carmel as the guest of Mrs. Valentine Mott Porter. Last Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Dick Boone, who also live on the ranch, invited Dr. and Mrs. Russell Williams and the Morrows to a buffet dinner at their home. Dr. Williams is an old friend of Mrs. Morrow's. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. James Hopper joined the party and told of all the excitement of the Big Game.

The year's greatest star team in the year's greatest bombardment of songs, laughs and girls, Fred Astaire and Rita Hayworth dance and romance their way through the delightful, spectacular musical, "You'll Never Get Rich" which plays Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the Carmel Theatre. A comedy of army camp life, with a singable, swingable background of music by Cole Porter, it's great entertainment.

World-famed as a dancer before she set out to achieve stardom as an actress, Miss Hayworth's position as Astaire's dancing partner, merits high applause. The two stars, together, should attain greater heights than even those enjoyed several seasons ago by Astaire and Ginger Rogers.

Supporting the principals in this joyous film musical of army camp life are such well-knowns as Robert Benchley, John Hubbard, Guinn "Big Boy" Williams and Donald McBride.

NAVAL AVIATION SHOWN IN NEW MARCH OF TIME

Besides being of interest to the movie-going public in general, the latest March of Time, "Sailor with Wings," will most likely be of particular interest to the number of friends and relatives of Carmel boys enlisted in the navy air corps.

This film, which will be at the Carmel Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, traces briefly the development of the Navy's air service since the period of the first World War, shows its present-day training and construction programs, and how it operates in partnership with the fleet, ranging over the oceans in search of Axis raiders and submarines.

More About the Medical Reserve Corps in Service

Here is part of an unsigned letter on the subject of what was written here last week about medical reserve officers not being allowed to go above the rank of major. Attention Eleanor James

Those Poor Medical Officers!

Before we become too distressed over the plight of the reserve medical officers—wouldn't it be a good idea to get those who feel that promotion regulations concerning them are unfair to do a little necessary missionary work among their ranks?

Then, and you can check this on the records of the Medical Association convention held at the Hotel Del Monte last spring—they contrived in every possible and, yes, impossible manner to squirm, crawl and even lie out of reporting to do what was not only required of them, but sorely needed.

Any truthful doctor, alert to this situation, will admit that this fact has been a disgrace to the entire profession. Those who are in active duty spend a good deal of time complaining about it. They like to tell you of the practice they gave up and about how they are getting no medical work in the army. Half of these complainers were residents, earning less than the army pays them, some of them were internes—earning about a quarter of their present monthly income.

Perhaps the most unfair thing about the medical reserve officers is their own negative, warped attitude toward their present dilemma?

This, as in most "cases," has exceptions. Some of them are in defense heart and soul. It is shameful that these few are outnumbered by the disgruntled, self-centered throngs of doctors who, for the same reason they are taking this anti-attitude—won't be very sorely missed by the patients they left behind them.

And if the advantages offered regular army medical officers keeps them awake at night with envy, they might try taking the necessary and available steps to pass the exams required to make them eli-

Ords and Ends

Pvt. Soapy, Fort Ord columnist, calls attention to a roadside sign just this side of Santa Barbara, "Coffee free to men in uniform. Exact location on request, send 25¢ to cover postage."

A 7th Division anti-tanker just went back to his job with the Automobile Club of Southern California after finishing his year's service as an enlistee. His first pay check had, added to it, $50 as a little Christmas gift.

One Army icebox cost $250,000. But then this military refrigerator at Fort Lewis, Washington, occupies two buildings.

Soldiers at Camp Roberts, San Miguel, are now going to have a chance to do some reading, 475 new books, at a cost of $656, have been laid in.

The question has been raised why so many soldiers in uniform hoofing it back without any thumbing from the Ord-Moffett Field game (where the score was 7 to 0 against them), were not given a lift by empty GI trucks passing them in convoy.

A remount—according to Pfc. Spencer Casteel is "the most fractious, stubborn, unpredictable four footed beastie extant... a horse that has been purchased by the Army, branded, and let loose upon wholly unsuspecting artillerymen." The new remounts at Main Garrison are causing a lot of spills and speculation.

gible for the same advancement. Who's stopping them?

Maj. Gen. Danford Is the Guest of Mrs. Hathaway

Chief of Artillery from Washington, D.C., Major General Robert M. Danford, arrives in Carmel today. He will be the guest of his sister-in-law, Mrs. C. E. Hathaway, at her home on San Antonio, Gardendale. Her sister did not accompany General Danford on his cross country inspection tour of field artillery units. After spending two nights in Carmel the general leaves Saturday morning for San Francisco.

General Danford will inspect the field artillery at Fort Ord tomorrow when this outfit will put on the best show they can for their visiting Chief of Artillery. At noon the P.A. officers will give a luncheon in his honor at the Officers' Club.

MOTORIZING THE 7TH DIVISION

When the 7th Division becomes a motorized unit one might think, ah, soldiers, then will not have to walk any more. But it seems there will still be infantry, three regiments but with a greatly augmented power of attack and defense.

Each of the regiments will be made up of two rifle battalions and one support battalion. They will have only about two-thirds as many men as the present regiments, but their weapons will give them greater fire power. Instead of an authorized strength of 15,000 which Fort Ord now has, it will be reduced to 14,000.

New equipment is already on the way to this cantonment to make the 7th into a motorized division. It will be patterned after the 4th Division, now the only motorized division in the army.

Bergen, Charlie McCarthy Broadcast Sunday from Ord

"Pvt. Charlie McCarthy" will do his broadcasting from Fort Ord this Sunday, the first of the National Broadcasting shows to originate at Main Garrison.

All the usual cast will be there, Ray Noble and his orchestra, Judy Garland, Abbott and Costello.

GENERAL STILWELL OFF TO HUNTER LIGGETT AGAIN

Major General Joseph W. Stilwell, head of the III Army Corps, leaves Monday for Jolon where he and his headquarters staff will act as umpires and observers at new maneuvers starting the first of the week at Hunter Liggett Military Reservation. They will be the type of maneuvers with no dates, termless, to end when they end—probably in a few days.

NORTHLIGHTS

By Eleanor Minton James

M. de Neale Morgan, veteran Carmel painter, is having a till-Christmas show at her Lincoln street studio. It is well worth going to.

Without any artificial attempt at streamlining her work to keep abreast of today's esthetic era, Miss Morgan's canvases successfully hold their own in any modern city gallery.

No one has painted cypress, sea and dune more consistently memorably through the years than she has. By her broadly painted and decorative weather-flattened cypress, under scored with red rust, slanting over billowing white dunes, M. de Neale Morgan made a national name for herself.

She still paints cypress and sea, vigorously but not with a palette knife as she did originally at the very start—a style which led the English painter, Arthur Vachel, to exclaim, "What a strong fist Miss Morgan has!" Vachel is the artist whom John Kenneth Turner said always painted Point Lobos with a British accent.

The remarkable thing is that M. de Neale Morgan has never allowed herself to become typed. Besides her boldly painted cypresses, she paints so many other things in so many different ways. The green patchwork of Salinas lettuce fields; the Valley of Alisal where she lived with her grandmother who came there from Canada in 1856; flowers—Japanese and Chinese magnolias, roses, fuschia; the Palm Springs desert; coast ranchlands—the old Post ranch house which is to be turned into a tea room; San Gabriel and San Juan Missions; suburban cities—Oakland and Piedmont which, with their red tiled roofs, gardens, brick walls and flowering fruits are, she says, a beautiful tapestry to her.

Tempera sketches—Miss Morgan likes to work in tempera—she points up with pastel, getting very pleasant effects. Her old Santa Cruz white church, a bit of New England, transplanted out here, is done this way. Here, incidentally, 12 of the original parishioners who started in 1868 are still attending Sunday services.

The things that hit me most in this latest show of Miss Morgan's recent work are the desert canvases which I had never seen before. In her Palm Springs sketches, she has managed to catch the desert pranks of atmosphere—the weird zigzagging of violet shadows darkening background heights, in turn flanked by higher snow, with purple parapets of mountains in the foreground dwarfing joshuas and cholla bushes which spot flattened desert sands. Cathedral City, Palm Canyon, San Jacinto.

Also—her smiling Salinas valley ranch layout backed up against foothills, with the fields shut out by white washed fences, swamped deep in California poppies with some lupin sticking through. For once, wild flowers are painted unsentimentally.

Then her monumental canopied cypress forest on the brink of a Lobos foamy rock whirlpool. She is

At The Churches

All Saints' Church

Next Sunday, the 2nd Sunday in Advent, 8 a.m., Service of the Holy Communion. At 9:30 a.m., Junior Church and School. At 11 a.m., Choral Service with sermon message by the Rector, the Rev. C. J. Hulsey. The full-vested choir will participate in this service and will sing as the offertory anthem, Johann S. Bach's Alleluia from the Cantata "For Unto Us a Child Is Born." Organ numbers will include Mendelssohn's Consolation and a Chorale O Give Thanks Unto the Lord by Jan Sweelinck. Visitors to Carmel will want to worship in this House of Prayer for all People.

Church of the Wayfarer

At the Church of the Wayfarer next Sunday morning the sermon theme of the Pastor, Dr. James E. Crowther, will be, "What I Owe to the Bible." No book is more widely circulated, no book is more beneficent in its influence, no book is more tragically misinterpreted by its friends. The organ music by Margaret Sherman Lea will be, Adagio, Beethoven; Intermezzo, Mascagni; Pilgrim Chorus, Wagner. Visitors are invited to worship in this lovely sanctuary.

sending this to the next Santa Cruz Exhibition.

Miss de Neale Morgan's show will be on until Dec. 24th. She will be at her studio every afternoon. At any other time, by appointment.

COUNCIL BRIEFS

The council favored $15 a month increase in pay for all officers and the chief of the Carmel police department at Wednesday's meeting. This means a $900 total jump in salaries next year. The street department staff recently got an increase and now the street superintendent, William Askew, gets $15 more car allowance (he was left out of the salary uppace).

The council will meet again Dec. 10 and Dec. 17, for urgent business required before the end of the year.

The city will go ahead with buying the Frank "Stonewall" Smith ten-lot parcel in the ravine near the tennis courts for a dumping ground and future park. $1500 for the strip seems attractive, the council admits.

The Pine Cone got a "boost" (as recently headlined by the Monterey Herald) in keeping the city legal printing. The winning bid was a cut-rate 10 cents a square inch. The Cymbal bid 38 cents a column inch as for the Sanitary Board printing, as a legitimate price to cover cost and an infinitesimal profit for two square inches of advertising space. The hollow, costly title of "official newspaper" is the Pine Cone's for what it is worth. (Won't that burn Allen up?)

The Carmel Business Association can have one (1) Christmas tree this year. The council's agin (except Mayor Keith B. Evans) letting them doll up three trees, as requested. Bernard Rowntree spoke out against giving $10 for advertising purposes and against three trees. The council seem to agree.

Quotable quotes: "I think we're going to need all our resources to meet increasing costs of materials and labor in the coming year." (Rowntree)

Mae Crawford, ex-Blue Bird, wrote the council about trees and roots on the "sidewalk" of her newly-acquired property across from the Purity Store on Mission. The council will look at them, but, frankly, is dimly discouraged over doing much with Carmel sidewalks, them being as they are (and always were). Besides, the city might find it too costly and be forced to make the adjacent property owner pay for the improvement work. Ever think of that?

The volunteer firemen are still standing by Senior Driver Charles Guth, ill since Oct. 10. They'll keep his watches, while he draws pay, until the end of the year. He has asked for three months' leave thereafter, hoping to be able to return to duty April 1. Good luck, Charlie!

JOHN BURR WILL SING IN CONCERT DECEMBER 6

John Burr will present his second annual concert at the Carmel Playhouse December 6, assisted by Ellen Rosell at the piano.

Burr, who is already well known in Carmel as a vocal teacher, needs little introduction. He has studied and sung extensively in Italy and Southern Europe until the outbreak of hostilities.

Mrs. Rosell, who is the wife of Captain Martin Rosell of Fort Ord, has had wide experience as concert pianist as well as accompanist for well known singers, including Gulio Savatti and Sandro Giglio.

RED CROSS DRIVE OVER AND THEY JUST ABOUT MADE THEIR GOAL

The Carmel chapter of the American Red Cross reports coming within a very close margin of reaching the desired goal, both in money and in membership with every reason to believe that both of the big Red Crosses on the Post Office corner will be filled by the time all the returns are in.

The Roll Call headquarters have closed, but further contributions may be sent to the American Red Cross, Carmel Chapter, P.O. Box 1862, or taken to the Red Cross office in the old Post office building on Dolores near Seventh.

Or, if you prefer to have a worker call at your house, please call Carmel 382 and your contribution will be called for.

If you have not been contacted, perhaps it is because you were not at home when the worker assigned to your district called.

ANNUAL MEETING OF RED CROSS MEMBERS TO BE HELD NEXT WEEK

The membership of the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross is cordially invited to attend the Annual Meeting of the Chapter on Wednesday, December 10th at All Saints' Parish House.

The meeting will start at 3:30 in the afternoon. The officers will render their annual reports and the membership will elect one-third of the Governing Board whose term expires January 1, 1942.

AUDUBON SOCIETY TO SEE EXCEPTIONAL BIRD FILMS

The next meeting of the peninsula Audubon Society will be somewhat of a special one according to Laddie Williams, who is very much enthused about the program which has been planned. Mrs. Laurel Reynolds is coming down from Piedmont to show her exceptional color films entitled "Fun With Birds," on Friday, December 12.

The Society invites everyone interested to come to the Pacific Grove Museum on December 12 at 8 o'clock. No admission will be charged.

TED LIONS HAS SERIOUS ACCIDENT ON MOTOR BIKE

Ted Lions, popular Standard Oil employe who, last month bought a motorbike to commute from his Del Monte home to Carmel, met with an accident Sunday while on the valley road en route to rent a house for his small family.

His collision with a Buick sedan while riding his motorbike, left him with two broken legs, an injured knee and many bruises. He was first taken to the Peninsula Community Hospital and later moved to the Salinas hospital.

POSSE OF 20 HUNT PROWLER

A prowler climbed over the fence at the residence of Don Machado on Santa Rita and 2nd at 8:30 Sunday evening and by the time Officer Wermuth arrived (approximately two minutes later) a searching party of at least 20 persons was there to help search for the intruder.

It was at first supposed that he had entered the house but this was an error and he made a perfect get-away in record time—which just as well for him with a crowd of that size looking for him.

MORE PERSONALS

Sunday afternoon Mrs. Richard A. Morse (Linda Rooke-Ley) invited her Carmel friends to her Hatton Fields home to meet her new husband. Among those seen sipping cocktails on this occasion were Mrs. James Greenan, Mr. and Mrs. John Cunningham, Dr. F. J. S. Conlan, Louis Conlan, Marian Boke Todd, Dorothy Stephenson, Herb Vial, George Aucourt, Mr. and Mrs. Al Durney, Sam Colburn, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Merivale, Joan and Beyerley Tait, Mrs. Josephine Peabody, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Neabitt, John Neabitt, Mrs. Margaret Dewees, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Whitney and Kalmen Sapero.

Mrs. Ludwig Hahn's two guests at La Playa, Mrs. Nora Andrae of New York and Miss Heather Washburn of New Zealand, just left for San Francisco after spending about a month here.

Home to the Ranch

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Pillsbury have returned to their ranch near Hollister after a lengthy visit in the village where they occupied the McCabe home on Casanova street.

Mrs. Paul Tullius arrived back in Carmel on Tuesday afternoon from Amador county and San Francisco where she had been for a few days. Guest of Mr. and Mrs. Tullius at the present time is Mr. Tullius' mother, Mrs. Stephanie Tullius.

New Residents

Lieutenant and Mrs. Donald J. Middlehurst will start housekeeping in Carmel. They were married last Saturday in San Francisco at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Russell. Mrs. Middlehurst was graduated from Southern Methodist University in Texas, and Lieutenant Middlehurst, who is stationed at Fort Ord, attended Washington State College.

Mr. and Mrs. George Woolsey, who have been active in amateur dramatics on the peninsula, have moved into their new home in Carmel Woods and are busy putting on the finishing touches on their home.

Wings to Mexico

Mrs. Chester Shephard left Los Angeles by plane this week bound for Mexico City where she will vacation for a short time.

Mary Burr returned Saturday evening after a two week visit with her family in Seattle. Mary had a fine time except that she had to make the drive up and the drive back in very, very wet weather.

Mary took the trip with Maurine Kennedy who is now once again back at her desk at Del Monte Lodge.

CARMEL P.T.A. AWARDED HONORABLE MENTION FOR INCREASED MEMBERSHIP

At the Reciprocity Luncheon given to honor the P.T.A. membership chairmen of Monterey County in Salinas on Tuesday at Santa Lucia Inn, the Carmel Chapter with 222 members, was given honorable mention for increase in membership.

Among the 100 persons who attended were Mrs. Walter De Lange, Carmel membership chairman who was made honoree, Mrs. Frank Timmins, Carmel president, Mrs. Neils Reimers and Mrs. E. Frederick Smith.

The regular meeting of the Carmel P.T.A. meeting will be held on Tuesday in the Sunset school library at which B. L. Boroughs, head of the sociological department at Salinas junior college will speak on "The Cost of Living and Home Economy in Monterey County." Boroughs has made a careful study of his subject and will present statistics and figures in full, to supplement his lecture.

GODWIN AND S.P.C.A.

Godwin found: Carmel paid over $400 in cash and license fees of $744; Pacific Grove gave $400 (will give $100) and fees of $655 (for a much larger area); Monterey gave $743 in fees.

Carmel, therefore, is a bonanza and, because of the few calls for aid, a paradise, relatively—and, if the council's attitude is an indication, Carmel a bit tired of being played for a sucker. This is plain language, but truthful.

Godwin was instructed to look into the fee-for-service proposition, and questions were also raised about dogs of adjoining unincorporated areas which "visit" in Carmel.

Mrs. Helen Cranston left yesterday for San Francisco where she will look for new home furnishings and do a little pre-Christmas shop scouting.

CARMEL NO LONGER PURE

Carmel isn't as free from contagion and disease as it has been in the past month. This week's health report states that somewhere in Carmel is lurking one case of mumps.
